It was

The Secrets of Heaven and Earth

that I desired to learn…

(Frankenstein, or the Modern Prometheus – by Mary Godwin Shelley)

Creative Contest on Science and Science Fiction.

After two inspiring live events:

October 24, 2018, Frankenstein: Non è più la mia voce che sento

and

November 14, 2018: Cellule, tempo, immortalità

The contest will start on November 20, 2018

Rules

The competition will be among groups of students (from the same class, or from different classes; maximum of 4 students per group). Applications must be submitted by e-mail to the library, bibliotecastein@gmail.com no later than Friday, November16. The application must include:

Class and Course - Team Name - List of Participants - Name and E-Mail Address (gmail) of Team Captain

Treasure Hunting inside the School Library

On November 20 participants will find the first clue of the Treasure Hunting on the school website, on the library fb page, and on the library commons board. From that moment the hunting of six mysterious library books will start.

Library opening hours for the hunting: every day from 9 a.m. except Wednesday and Saturday.

After receiving from the librarian some instructions about how books are ordered in the library (CDD System), teams will have to find the first mysterious book and then one by one all the others.

In each retrieved book participants will find a clue to the next one.

As soon as they find a book Team Captains are requested to email the book Author, Title, and Publisher to the email library address bibliotecastein@gmail.com

If necessary Team Captains might ask for some help and will be allowed to share a drive folder with the clue help. Of course this will imply a penalty!

Score system:

	No help	With help
Each book retrieved	3	1
Max score (n° X 6)	18	6
First fastest team	6	6
Second fastest team	5	5
Third fastest team	4	4

The score ranking of the Treasure Hunting will be published on Thursday, December 20 as well as the Rules of the last part of the competition encouraging teams to produce an original project in English.
